EDITOR'S MESSAGE

Higher education is a dream for most of developing world's students. Luckier are those who get a chance to experience this in leading universities abroad. For studying abroad, it's very crucial to carefully select the area of studies and universities. Unfortunately, there are many people around who use it as money making opportunity and misguide young minds, which become wastage of their precious time & money.

All over the world there is boom in higher education institute especially for foreign students. Countries offer incentives and opportunities for deserving students in term of scholarships etc. This also brought mushroom growth in so-called career counselors who know very less about the potential & seldom have ability to assess the requirements of students. All this demands quality counseling from subject selection, to application including scholarships and visa process till the physical presence of student.

THE CREATIVE MATTERS

DREAMS INFILTRATED: Dreams, are synonym to hope, something any one can have and as much as one want to be. These are said to be the most private treasure a man can have. Dreams are the ultimate motivation for anyone.

I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal.'

This dreamed continued the from on legacy to other, from one generation to other, as if carried a torch of hope. This chain can be tracked from Mark Luther King, to Jacky Jackson and finally to Barak Obama.

Neither I am here comment of US politics, and its complexity, nor going to discuss the power, authority of change or any thing Obama would be having, doing or not.

My concern here is about dreams, how rich they were, having their own dream, got courage to realize their destiny and then stick to it. But what is our story?

We had a dream in our basis, superior than any of these, completed most destiny than any of these could be. A divine dictated obligation. We had a FAITH in that dream, the most powerful force in this world, unshakeable by any trauma and quake. The Dream of self-esteem, self reliance, being larger than life, boundless by any physical, mental, racial and even the ages. We had the legacy of Bilal – e – Habshi (RA), who have the status, that Sun refused to raise, when He ( RA ) abandon the call of prayer for one day.

Above all, we have the legacy of making dreams come true, by commitment, vision and dignity, we have Jinnah, father of this nation. But we started neglecting our intuition, forgot basic lesson, confused our identity. Started taking influences some time from left and right, from ups and downs. We contaminated our base, our religion by sometime making it Islamic socialism and sometime Islamic democracy.

We reached at the point we don't have thoughts of our own, our dreams are no more ours, we so called strive to westernize at one extreme, and Talibanize at other extreme, our fantasize has been hijacked, because of debased values. We are the poorest nation, who don't have right to have dreams of their own, which even Negroes posses. We have the DREAMS INFILTRATED ..... Fait Lost..... Hope Lost.

This what we can learn from Obama's struggle. we should revert back to ourselves. Lets purify our Dreams first. Lets dare to dream. We belong to person, who dreamed this impossibility, which made reality by another torch bearer of that dream, Mr. Muhammad Allama Iqbal.

We have all the ingredients, we have resources, we have people, we have sea, rivers, forests, minerals, seasons and most important we have REASON of our existence. We must learn to be proud of ourselves. Instead of influenced by these events lets learn what Destiny wants us to understand, this is the language of nature, we must understand before it is too late.

It is said that before the last step, nature gives any nation two chance, one to their leaders, and one last one to the people. Our leaders were given their chance, by first time, establishment got defeated. But it seems, that they are not ready to avail that. Now Time of Trail is approaching, before destiny becomes ANONYMITY.
